Blended Intensive Program at the Hungarian University of Sports Science

English for Sport

Coordinator: Hungarian University of Sports Science (HUSS)

Course goal and overview:

Our English for Sport course is different from typical language learning programs because it has an effective communication-oriented approach. Our course prepares you to confidently use sector-specific vocabulary in professional interactions.

Our experienced and enthusiastic instructors guide you through carefully designed learning activities that focus on practical exercises, communication, and role-plays. This ensures that you gain the vocabulary and confidence required to perform and communicate effectively on an international level.

Our online classes include learning materials to help you familiarize yourself with the language required for communication about current sports issues. We also provide learning tasks with an international aspect due to the diverse backgrounds of our participants.

Classroom activities at the Hungarian University of Sports Science are tailored to small groups (6-10) and focus on developing oral communication skills. There will be plenty of opportunities for you to share your prior experience in sports through projects and assignments.

The course material focuses on contemporary issues in physical activity and sports from a linguistic perspective. A minimum Level B1+ (CEFR) is required to join the program.
